STILL A DEADLOCK.

The Situation at Dover Remains About the Same.

On the theory that "variety is the spice of life," Mr. McAllen voted for Mr. Massey at the two last ballots taken this week. It was a very surprising thing for him to do truly as Mr. Massey's candidacy is in direct opposition to every principle involved in the election of Mr. Higgins.

What the next break will be we shall not undertake to say, for our law makers seem to see through a glass darkly. Is their party vision effected? The selection of a State Auditor and Treasurer is the matter of next importance to electing a Senator. A caucus will be held Monday night by both parties. The candidates for State Treasurer are Winfield S. Quigley, of Wilmington, George D. Kelley, of Middletown, George E. Smith, of Laurel, Charles Adkins of Milton.

It is probable that the Democrats will name David S. Wilds, of Kenton for State Auditor.

THE EDITOR'S ARCADE.
Scott Way Enjoying the Delights of a Floridian Winter.
Florida evidently has claims for the Peninsula editors, several of whom are located to the land of the palm trees. Scott Way writes that he is settled for the winter at Daytona, a nice little town near the ocean and 140 miles south of Jacksonville. The weather, he says, is charming, no fires, windows open all night, and outdoors the place to spend the days, all of which furnishes a delightful contrast to the climate he left behind him. His graveyard cough has disappeared, which information is received with emotion by the obituary writer of the Transcript.

Our readers will be pleased to know that his faculty pen will furnish us an occasional letter this winter which will be published in these columns.

BANK OFFICERS.
CITIZENS' BANK.
At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Citizens' National Bank, held at the banking house on the 15th inst., the following were elected officers for the ensuing year: President, Henry Clayton; Vice President, J. B. Cazier; Cashier, J. S. Crouch; Teller, L. Darlington; Directors, Henry Clayton, Thomas Cavender, Stephen Boyer, Andrew Woodall, J. B. Cazier, Joseph Biggs, N. J. Williams, Charles S. Ellison and Richard Clayton.

PEOPLES BANK.
At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Peoples National Bank, held on Saturday, the following were elected directors for the ensuing year: Dr. J. V. Crawford, G. W. W. Naudin, J. Frank Ellison, George L. Townsend, Z. A. Pool, H. A. Nowland, George M. D. Hart, R. T. Cann, Jr., T. C. Crawford and George F. Brady. Dr. J. V. Crawford, President; G. D. Kelley, Cashier; Wm. Lockwood, Teller.

DARING ROBBERY.
One of the most daring robberies in Kent county Md., for years occurred near Harrisville several days ago. In the evening, while Mr. Charles Long and his family were seated in their sitting room, a robber broke a window of the parlor, which admitted the strong robber, who immediately tackled the doctor leading into the occupied room, put cartridges into a breach loading gun to be used if need, broke open a small cupboard and secured $38 in money and made his escape. It is supposed that the noise made by several children in the occupied room furnished a cover for the operation of the thief.

ATTACKED BY A FOOT PAD.
William H. McDonald, of Newark, Del., while returning home late Tuesday night was attacked on the Elkton road by a foot-pad. The man sprang at McDonald and ordered him to halt. Taking in the situation, Mc Donald, instead of halting, rushed at the man and dealt him a severe blow on the head with a club. The highwayman was so taken by surprise that he turned and ran. He was followed by McDonald, who continued to pound him over the shoulders and head with the club until his weapon broke.

THE ROYALIST REVELT.
It is said Wilcox and His Men Intended to Blow up the Government House.
Facts have come to light which show that the royalist revolt in Honolulu included a plot to blow up the Government headquarters with dynamite. It is now known that the sailing vessel which took a consignment of arms from Victoria also carried a supply of dynamite and other high explosives, and that these were landed under cover of darkness some miles beyond Diamond Head. When the Alameda sailed from Honolulu the rebels had carried the arms and explosives back into the hills to a point where Wilcox was intrusted with his men.

PERSONALITIES.

Little Lines About Men and Women and What They Are Doing.

—Dr. W. F. Kennedy was in town this week.
—Prof. W. L. Gooding, of Dover, was in town this week.
—Miss Bessie Mills, of Clayton, is visiting Miss Edith Reynolds.
—Miss Ethel Parvis returned home from Baltimore on Thursday.
—Judge Grubb, of Wilmington, visited Middletown friends on Thursday.
—Mr. B. T. Craddock, of Philadelphia is visiting at his father's Mr. William Kates.
—Mrs. Laura Hill, of Philadelphia, visited her sister Mrs. Frank Pierce near town this week.
—Miss Lizzie Parker, accompanied by Mr. Van Dusen, of Philadelphia, spent Sunday with her parents in town.

—George French, of Chicago, made a hasty visit to Middletown friends this week, not forgetting the Transcript.
—Miss Ella Jarrell who has been spending several weeks with friends near Taylors Bridge returned home on Thursday.
—Mrs. Perkins, formerly a resident of Middletown, but now residing in New York State, is a guest of Mrs. Alex Maxwell, in town.

—Mr. John Hayes, of Wilmington, formerly of Middletown was in town on Thursday on the lookout for farm hands, to work on his truck farm near Wilmington.
—Costable Grandon Reed has recovered from his late illness sufficiently to be able to ride out and attend to business. We were pleased to see him in town this week and hope he has taken a new lease on life.

CHURCH NOTES.
The gospel meeting in the Methodist Church last Sunday evening was after the highest type of a truly evangelistic service. The large voluntary chorus choir leading the singing of appropriate hymns, followed by an audience filling the church, was inspiring and impressive, and could not fail to awaken a devotional spirit. The closing selection "Jesus Pilate Me" was sung with a heartiness and expression, the influence of which was felt by every one.

A most delightful and impressive service was held Thursday afternoon in the M. E. Church. The announcement was made in the interest of the aged members who, because of feebleness, had not been able to attend the gospel meetings being held during the past weeks, and in the unfavorable weather of the winter seldom have the opportunity for public worship on the Sabbath.

One feature of the service was the singing of the hymns so familiar in other days, "Come on my Partners in Distress," "O how Happy are They," "How Tedious and Ta-tious the Hours," "Children of the Heavenly King." After some introductory remarks, testimonies were given, some referring to the changes that had taken place since their admission to the Church. One had been a member for 65 years, another 60 and others dating back more than 40 years all of which made reference to their unshaken confidence in God and their hope of everlasting life. One person of 60 years told of his appreciation of the great mercy which brought him into the light at such a late period of life. The whole service was exceedingly interesting and the memory of which will linger in these saintly spirits for a long time to come.

THE CANNERS' LOSS.
The tomato canners of the Peninsula suffered severe financial losses, as a rule last year. Those who contracted their goods before packing and who succeeded in having their produce, accepted, have made a little money; but most of the tomatoes put in tins have been sold at less than the cost of production. The year 1893 resulted in handsome profits to tomato canners, and as a result old canners last year increased their production and many new ones entered the business. The result is overproduction, which is rendered easier by dull business generally. The recent removal of the tariff on tin has reduced the price of that article to such an extent that cans now cost much less than last summer, with the result that no speculator will dare carry over any canned goods except at prices much less than the cost of production last season. Added to this is another fact that tends to decrease the present price of tomatoes. Canners desire that they will not pay more than $5 per ton for ripe tomatoes next summer, to the end that they may pack them cheaper.

SNOW IN THE SIERRAS.
Up to the Cross Arms on Telegraph Peaks—Neighbors Use Tunnels.
The scene in the Sierras in California this week is one of the surpassing magnificence. It seems as if the route of the General Pacific were laid through the line of the greatest snowfall. With drifts 40 feet deep and snowdrifts 200 feet deep, the mountain peaks are put to the test. The rotary snow plows are tossing the snow in continuous streams from the roadbed, but from Gold Run to Tucker snow is falling at the rate of one inch or more an hour.

In places hardy mountaineers in the tunnels through the snow. Trains proceed cautiously through solid perpendicular banks of snow like marble walls towering above the coaches.

ANNUAL SPREAD.
The Voluntary Hose Company Feasted on the Bivouac.
The Hose Company gave their annual supper at the Hose House on Thursday evening in honor of the newly elected officers. There were about fifty who partook of the oyster feast served in Kates most tempting style and the lozenge seemed never so happy. Prices Orchestra furnished music during the whole evening and the occasion was a creditable effort on the part of the Company.

WANT TO BE LIBRARIAN.
There are a number of applicants for State librarian at Dover, among whom are H. Ridgely Harrington, William C. Conwell, John C. Prettyman, Isaac Lofland, A. T. Layton, all of Dover; J. W. Watts of Camden and George W. Spicer of Sussex county. The position of librarian is worth about $500 a year.

WHO SAYS RO?
Miss Susan B. Anthony is said to be one of the best bread makers in the United States. As Susan never had a husband to try her bread on, and we never heard of her keeping boards, who is it says so?—Ex

LITTLE LOCALS.

—The Mission Band of Forest Presbyterian church gave a very pleasing entertainment at Dr. Gilpin's on Monday evening.

—The cold snap has restored the skating to what was its former excellence, and our experts and amateurs are again enjoying this exhilarating pastime.

—Misses Clayton entertained the Whist Club at their beautiful home on Cass Street on Friday evening of last week. It was a very brilliant party, a number of guests from the neighborhood being present.

—Misses Anderson entertained the Christian Endeavor Society and their friends last evening in a very delightful Social. Each Endeavorer had the privilege of inviting one friend which made altogether quite a large company. The evening was much enjoyed.

—Dr. I. S. Vallandigham had the misfortune of having his hen roost robbed of almost every chicken on the perch this week, as a fine lot of fat fowls were ever looked upon. His loss is the rooster's gain, but there is small compensation in that saw.

—Mrs. M. C. Barnett has moved her millinery store from the Willits building to the Reynolds' Block in Cochran Square and occupies the room vacated by Mrs. B. O. Payne. Mrs. Barnett will continue her dressmaking establishment in conjunction with her millinery and fancy goods store.

—The Glass Blowers who are showing at the Opera House this week, give some interesting exercises in glass blowing. They are said to be the same company who had charge of the Libby Glass works at the World's Fair, and Madame Anderson the lady who designed the woven dress for the Infanta Eulalia.

—Prof. Willes of New York gave an interesting lecture on physiognomy, palmistry, etc., at the Middletown schools on Thursday afternoon, and the audience are remarking upon the noses, lips, ears, etc., of their parents and teachers with very surprising familiarity with human frailties. Professor Willes said that the eyes are the index to the soul.

The closing of S. M. Reynolds' Store by Sheriff Gilpin on Tuesday, has cost a gloom over our town. The failure of this firm is a calamity to the community, and the consequence of those people who have run big store bills and have sprung on unpaid for customers should move them to even yet made repetition. Buying and never paying is what is destroying the business life of our community.

—We are glad to note an indication favorable to the suppression of "hoodlums" in our town. The post office and other public places have been centers where a set of unruly boys congregated to the great annoyance of the public. The post office officials have been greatly discommoded, especially in the busy hours, by this pert, impudent and possibly irresponsible element. The law has finally been invoked as a last resort, and we hope will have a salutary effect.

TWELVE MILLION STAMPS.
The Sympathies of Some Middletown People Engaged by a Fraud.
The following from a recent issue of the Philadelphia Record will be of interest to our readers, some of whom were the victims of the sell, and a few weeks ago this same plea was being plentifully circulated here by the means of that old method a Chain of Letters:

Some time ago Rev. J. T. Logan, pastor of the Free Methodist Church, of Wilkesbarre, received a letter from Kaneville, Ill., to the effect that a young woman of that town, Edna Brown, who was a helpless cripple, would receive treatment at a hospital in that place, provided she furnished a million cancelled postage stamps in payment thereof. Mr. Logan was requested to send stamps and also get his friends to send them.

Mr. Logan complied with the request and in a short time he found that a great many of his acquaintances had received letters from Kaneville. When the preacher wrote to the Kaneville postmaster the latter replied that Mr. Logan had better keep his stamps, as he was being deceived. The game had been worked so successfully that the Browns already had 12,000,000 stamps.

G. A. R.
Major John Goss Post, G. A. R. is going to have company on Feb. 7. The Department of Delaware will spend the day here, and it is desired and expected that every body will lend a hand in entertaining the veterans. There are from one to two hundred men in the Department of Delaware and they will be the rank of colonel.

John Norris Robinson, Wilmington, Quartermaster for New Castle county, with the rank of colonel. Austin Harrington, Wilmington, Judge Advocate General, with the rank of colonel.

Lost—Tuesday somewhere on Main St. presumably between the M. E. church and Mrs. Shepherd's a gold "fob" chain with a ball ornament. The finder will be rewarded by returning it to this office.

For Sale—Forty-five Pigs, cheap, by HENRY CLAYTON, Middletown, Del.

Struck by a Train.
Leslie Greiv, died at his home with his father, near Mt. Pleasant, on Tuesday, of pneumonia. He was the son of James Greiv, a well known and prosperous farmer, and was 27 years old. His funeral took place yesterday, from his residence at 11 o'clock, a. m. Interment at St. Georges Cemetery.

For Prison Reform.
A circular letter to the clergymen of all religious denominations of the State asking for co-operation in securing prison reform in this State has been issued by the executive and advisory committee of the Delaware Union for the Public Good. The letter requests all pastors to present the subject to their parishioners during the last week or on the last Sunday of this month.

SMALLPOX IN PHILADELPHIA.

The Post Alarmingly Prevalent—Resolutions Adopted by the Pennsylvania State Board of Health.

At a recent meeting of the Pennsylvania State Board of Health, the following preamble and resolution were adopted:

WHEREAS, There has been for several months past a more than usual prevalence of smallpox in many cities of the United States, and among them in the city of Philadelphia; and

WHEREAS, Said disease has recently found its way from the city of Philadelphia to three different points in this State contiguous to said city; therefore,

Resolved, That, while in the opinion of this board, the energetic measures employed by the Philadelphia Board of Health, in providing for and urging general vaccination and enforcing the rigid resolution of all cases, will if seconded by the intelligent and ready co-operation of citizens, prevent the disease from becoming epidemic; nevertheless, for the absolute protection of communities adjacent to or liable to constant intercommunication with the city, this board recommends and urges upon the health authorities of all such communities and also upon all heads of families, a general and prompt resort to vaccination.

SHOULD BE VACCINATED.
Editor Every Evening, I am authorized by the Board of Health of the State of Delaware to call the attention of our local Boards of Health and the people in general to the necessity of taking immediate steps to have our people vaccinated and re-vaccinated as soon as possible, as they are in danger of having the disease brought to our city any day or hour.

E. B. FRAZER, Secretary.
Wilmington, Del. Jan. 23, '95.
In accordance with the above notice, the Board of Health earnestly calls the attention of the citizens of Middletown to the vital importance of vaccination. The almost hourly communication with Philadelphia makes the introduction of smallpox to this community very possible. By order of

THE WILL OF A MAJORITY.

Thoughtful men of the Republican party to-day realize the fact that if party ascendancy is to be maintained in Delaware, the will of a majority must be recognized. The integrity of party organization depends upon an inviolable and sacred respect for the will of the majority, and it is upon this ground that the supporters of Mr. Higgins stand. The choice of a capable, worthy and honorable man to represent our commonwealth in the upper House of the National Congress is a sacred duty that our Legislators owe their constituents, themselves and the nation, but the question as to who the man shall be is lost sight of in the greater question of party existence. Will the Republican party prove itself a law-abiding organization willing to be governed by well-known and established rules, or will it give over to discordant fragments that only offer personal preferences as the ground for their claims?

The Republican party in Delaware stands to-day before the whole nation to prove itself worthy of governing the State, a majority of whose citizens expressed their belief in the integrity of that party at the polls last November. Our confidence in the Republican party is unshaken, and we believe that in this emergency as in every other, it will demonstrate the fact that the trust of the people has not been misplaced and Republican supremacy is assured.

The State may well feel proud, however, that the man whom the majority have settled upon for Senator is one whom it was an honor for any Legislature to name for that high office, and while the election of Senator Higgins is of far greater importance to Republicans in Delaware than it is to Mr. Higgins, we can but feel glad that so worthy a candidate is named.

In the six years of his Senatorial life he has done more for the honor and glory of Delaware than have all his predecessors for fifty years, and he is recognized as a Statesman whose grasp upon great national and international questions places him in the foremost rank of the nation's best. And while there are other brilliant and brainy men in the party there are none who stand so close to its very life as he. He is a true son of Delaware, indigenous to the soil; his record is blameless, his private life spotless, and having been weighed in the balance and not found wanting in any Statesman's quality, the Republican Legislature can but unite upon him as its own success and the death of the party will remain, we believe it will be long broken, and the party organization be stronger than ever, after standing the pressure of the last two weeks.

ON WHISKERS.

The New York Sun, in mentioning the election of Senator Baker, of Kansas, as the associate of Senator Peffer, notes the fact of Baker's having a smooth face in contrast to Peffer, who is chiefly distinguished for his capillary adornment. The Sun says:

"There is a subtle connection between political extremists and natural whiskers, which may, perhaps, at some future time make the barber shops of the United States the rallying point of conservatism and good order. Every Anarchist has whiskers. No man could be an Anarchist in the United States, or could long continue to be one, unless he had whiskers, or a beard, or both. All radical reformers have whiskers; the more radical, the more whiskers. Under these circumstances the election by our Republican friends in Kansas of a smooth-faced Senator seems to be a symbolical of the return of the people of that State to sound politics and sound principles. Baker's election seems to mark the reaction from the pro-whisker period of Peffer. It seems to show that the connecting link between public unhappiness and surplus hair has been broken in Kansas."

The statistics given by the Department of Agriculture will make a valuable contribution to the campaign literature in the next presidential struggle. Campaign orators will not be able to pull the wool over the farmers' eyes after they once learn the significance of the following figures. The farmers of this country received $37,427,460 less for their corn crop, and $96,200,856 less for their wheat crop last year than they received in 1892, and that in the face of prophecies and promises of $1.00 wheat etc. When factories are idle, labor unemployed and business paralyzed, naturally the farmer who "feeds them all" is one of the first to feel the effects of the general bad times. The home market is the source of life for the farmer as well as the manufacturer, and when the working people stop buying because their means for earning are cut off, the outlook for the general weal is woeful! And we've two years more of Grover.

THE BROOKLYN STRIKE.

The Brooklyn Street Car Strike furnishes a bloody object lesson in proof of the vast scope of evil and its endless train of ill consequences.

...An immense system of Street Railways is reorganized; pursuant thereto, a half dozen or so cold blooded conspirators in New York City, concoct a thieving scheme by which, in the recapitalization they create a pretended debt to the enormous amount of $30,000,000, represented by obligations payable to themselves, and saddle it upon the new corporation. To perfect the operation of this villainy, the system thus handicapped must be made to produce revenue sufficient for this big load and yet pay its actual fixed charges. In prosperous times the roads earned enough to do even this and pay the men living wages; but when the times became more stringent they could not do this without robbing those overworked employees. Accordingly this coterie of rapacious scamps, in order to feed their luxurious extravagance, proceeded to pare away the very crust of life from between the teeth of their hapless workmen, till these, driven to desperation at the remorseless spoliation, blindly seek to redress their wrongs by the means of that dangerous expedient, the "strike," which not only entails endless loss and suffering upon the public generally, but eventually leads to riot and bloodshed.

Consequently we are now contemplating the spectacle of the civil arm of the magistracy powerless in the face of rioters, and an armed militia in a time of peace bivouacked in the heart of a great city, while every industry is paralyzed at sight of the grim Ogre of War and Rapine!

In one of the many encounters of these militiamen loses his head and a peaceful citizen is shot while engaged in the pursuit of his lawful craft—a victim laid a whole burnt offering upon the altar of the Moloch of Greed! Aware of the official rascality which lies at the bottom of the whole trouble, the exasperated public openly express their sympathy with the strikers—nay, countenance and aid them in their violations of law; meanwhile the whole of that big city with all its vast traffic, infinite interchanges of commerce and society, affecting more or less directly hundreds of thousands, is in a state of paralysis and panic! Fortunate, indeed, if the madness does not grow to the pitch of an open and armed revolution which may in the end overthrow all law and order.

In any event great loss and inconvenience have already been caused to the public, much property, and worst of all, precious human life sacrificed. And all for what? To enrich a small gang of slick, kid gloved rogues, seeking by any means, no matter how villainous or vile, to acquire the means of living in idle luxury and sloth!

The facility with which these $30,000,000 pilferers can wreck banks, plunder railroads, by juggling or "watering" its stock, or form "trusts" and "corners" that levy a tyrannous tribute upon the very staples of life that feed millions, and yet go unwhipped of justice, is justly a reproach to our civilization!

What a mockery of justice to shoot down the misguided wretches who ignorantly seek the repair of an injustice that grinds them under its heel, and let the calculating miscreants go scot free to enjoy the fruits of their villany.

The chirp of the cuckoo was heard in the legislative hall, of the nation this week, and Senator Gray undertook to vindicate the "policy of infamy." But it would not work. The American people had already passed upon the Hawaiian affair, and the siren notes of a thousand cuckoos will not change the public mind in its decision that the Administration has played into the hands of the enemy, and the revolt of the Hawaiian royalists is the direct result of Mr. Cleveland's ardent devotion to the barbarous queen. If he had defended the Dole Republic with half the earnestness he manifested for his dusky charmer, Annexation Commissioner Carter, who was killed in the recent skirmish, would undoubtedly be living to-day. The revolt of the royalists was ill advised, but the young Republic displayed rare presence of mind and ample resources in so summarily restoring order. Every Anarchist has whiskers. No man could be an Anarchist in the United States, or could long continue to be one, unless he had whiskers, or a beard, or both. All radical reformers have whiskers; the more radical, the more whiskers. Under these circumstances the election by our Republican friends in Kansas of a smooth-faced Senator seems to be a symbolical of the return of the people of that State to sound politics and sound principles. Baker's election seems to mark the reaction from the pro-whisker period of Peffer. It seems to show that the connecting link between public unhappiness and surplus hair has been broken in Kansas."

THE DISCOVERY SAVED HIS LIFE.

Mr. G. Calhoun, Druggist, Beaverville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at Dr. Vaughan's Pharmacy.

"Mr. Hadup must have used a great deal of flattery to win the heiress." "No," he simply told her the truth."

"Indeed?" "Yes," he said he could not live without her."

In cases of habitual constipation Electric Bitters cures by giving the method tone to the bowels, and few cases long resist the use of this medicine. Try it once. Large bottles only Fifty cents at Dr. Vaughan's Pharmacy.

and the country needs no further proof of Democratic incompetency and ineptitude. We need to have the Treasury protected against bankruptcy, and the Republican Statesmen under whose guidance the country prospered for thirty years are still abundantly able to give relief, and will do it if Cleveland's immeasurable egoism will permit it.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

N. Y. Sun.

Grover Cleveland and Walter Q. Gresham have not been in Hawaii, but they have a right to count themselves among the conspirators in favor of Kiliukalani, whose recent effort to restore her majesty to the throne has proved a failure.

N. Y. Sun.

The Department of Agriculture makes a radical mistake in a bill it is promoting in Congress to "change the method of seed distribution." The proper change would be to cut it off short. Why should seeds be distributed to farmers any more than woodchucks and type to newspaper men?

Morning Advertiser.

Sitting amid the ruins of Butte, the Mayor of that town, having regained the partial use of himself, has penned a proclamation that hereafter stringent measures will be taken to prevent the storing of high explosives within the city limits. In this relation we may call attention to the man who locked the stable door after the horse had been stolen. Also to the President who sent a war ship to Hawaii after the revolution had been put down.

The "Trilby" craze has had no funnier outcome than the desire of girls in all parts of the world who think they resemble Du Maurier's heroine to communicate with the author. Mr. Du Maurier has received a large number of photographs from young women in this and other countries asking him if, in his opinion, they resemble the real "Trilby." These letters and pictures place him in an embarrassing position, but he is doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances.—Ex.

The Hawaiian fury has served a useful purpose in throwing some light on the actual condition of the United States Navy as regards its fitness for an emergency. The Philadelphia could be despatched to Honolulu at once and could reach there in six days. Besides the Philadelphia there are at Mare Island four fast cruisers. These are the Benning, which cannot be got ready in ten days; the Boston and Marston, which are ready but have no crews, and the Olympic, not yet turned over to the Government. The Ranger, the Mohican and the Albatross are old, low-powered vessels, and the Monterey cannot carry coal enough for a cruise to Honolulu. Under the circumstances it is well that we do not immediately need a powerful fleet at Honolulu.

Representative-elect Huff, of Pennsylvania, who is a successful business man, is in Washington looking over the ground of his future labors. He says: "The country is sick and tired of agitation and ought to be given a rest. The President may close to call an extra session, but I think it very undesirable from a Democratic standpoint, as it is inimical to the business interests of the country. Senator Sherman has advanced a good plan of relief and I do not see why the Democratic majority should not act along the lines of his measure if they really want to enact some currency legislation."

It will be a long time before Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky hears the last of his ridiculous statement, that the city of Walla Walla, Washington was not on a railroad. It was one of the most glaring displays of ignorance ever made on the floor of the Senate, and it will be strange, indeed, if those who oppose Blackburn's reelection to the Senate do not make good use of it in the legislative campaign in Kentucky this year.

Some of the members of the House committee on the Judiciary having been assured of the undue haste with which that committee ordered the preparation and presentation of an impeachment resolution against Judge Ricks, of Ohio, the committee has reconsidered its action, in order to give Judge Ricks a hearing, and no one will be surprised if the committee finally votes against impeachment.

It was a little New Hampshire village among the mountains, where the country store served as post office, circulating library, shoe store and everything else combined, that a Boston lady, glancing over the books, inquired: "Have you Browning?" "No," said the attendant, somewhat regretfully, and not knowing just what kind of an article Browning might be, "We have blacking and bluing and have a man who does whitening. We occasionally do pinking. Would any of these do?"

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23rd, 1895.—Congressional indignation over the news of the blood shed in Hawaii for the time overshadowed the floundering of the Democrats in their futile attempts to get up some sort of financial bill, and will probably continue to do so for a few days. The tardy action of the administration in ordering the Philadelphia to proceed to Honolulu, which was virtually forced by angry protests of Democratic Senators and Representatives, is accepted as a tacit acknowledgment of the blunder made in not keeping a warship there for months past, but it is an acknowledgment not creditable to the administration from any point of view. Among the Democrats who have not hesitated to criticize the course of the administration are Representatives Livingston, of Georgia, who says that he thinks it the duty of this government to take charge of Hawaii, either by annexation or by the establishment of a protectorate, and Sickles, of New York, who said: "It is mortifying that American interests in Hawaii were left unprotected. We should not have been without a vessel there. The news must have interrupted sleep at the White House. I imagine it may have caused more uneasiness there than in Hawaii."

Senator Lodge said: "The deplorable news from Hawaii emphasizes the wisdom of Rear Admiral Walker's recommendations for keeping a man-of-war at Honolulu. Had a vessel been there as he advised, the revolt would not have occurred, or at least there would have been no blood shed. The responsibility for the loss of life must, therefore, rest with the administration. It had ample warning of what has taken place." Other Senators and Representatives, not all of them Republicans, either privately expressed similar sentiments. Although it is not certain it would surprise no one if the House and Senate should adopt one of the resolutions, introduced in both Senate and House, expressing the sense of Congress that one or more vessels should be constantly kept in the harbor of Honolulu, or one of a similar nature.

Another dearly cherished Democratic scheme to break down all American industry is practically dead. That is the free ship bill, which started out with such a rush. Representative Fithian, of Illinois, author of the measure, recognizing the impossibility of passing the bill in its original shape, is now trying to get pledges for a bill granting free entry to foreign built ships only on condition that those who bring them in shall construct vessels of the same tonnage in the United States. In other words a copy of the bill under which the American Steamship line was granted, American registers for the foreign built vessels New York and Paris.

In addition to the large number of American financiers and lawyers in Washington for the purpose of trying to have a say in the proposed legislation dealing with the Pacific Railroads, Sir Charles Wilson, an English financier, has arrived to look out for the English money invested in those roads. The impression is growing that this is another important question that will be left unacted upon.

Senator Burrows, of Michigan, Monday, began his Senatorial career and no man ever started in with more good wishes than he. Although one of the strongest partisans in all political questions who ever sat in the House, Mr. Burrows has always been highly esteemed personally by his political opponents. That his career in the Senate will be quite as marked as the one he made in the House is your correspondent's prediction.

Representative-elect Huff, of Pennsylvania, who is a successful business man, is in Washington looking over the ground of his future labors. He says: "The country is sick and tired of agitation and ought to be given a rest. The President may close to call an extra session, but I think it very undesirable from a Democratic standpoint, as it is inimical to the business interests of the country. ## Our Woman's Column

How the Wives of Millionaires Keep House and Spend Money.

HEN a woman has $100,000 a year to keep house on it is interesting to know how she manages it. There are about half a hundred women in New York who have this royal allowance. No one of them would be able to keep house on less, they say. And even on $100,000 a year, birds, fruits, flowers and servants are really quite a task to pay for and order.

Mrs. Theodore A. Havemeyer spends more upon her housekeeping than any other woman in New York, and Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes, who lives on the opposite corner of Thirty-ninth street and Madison avenue, probably comes next.

Mrs. Havemeyer's housekeeper engages all of the servants for the house except the chef and ladies' maids, and these are chosen by Mrs. Havemeyer herself. All of the responsibility of the housekeeping falls upon the stewardess and the housekeeper; he supplies the pantries and cold storage rooms with everything that the markets of the world contain, and the housekeeper sees that each of the servants does her work in the most perfect manner. The work is not hard, but the hours are. For the maids, day begins at 4 o'clock in the morning; for the windows, marble floors, books and paintings and everything in the magnificent house is carefully gone over every day, and all must be finished and every servant except the butler and footmen invisible before the earliest riser in the family saunters in for his 9 o'clock breakfast. When the entire family is finally assembled downstairs, which is usually not much before 10 o'clock luncheon, the upstairs work is finished, and so much work is to be done, and to be done thoroughly, that each hour of the day brings its duties, and there are not many rest moments before them.

Each morning as the lady of the house finishes her dainty breakfast of rolls and chocolate, her maid brings to her the menu made out for the next three meals by the chef. She checks off what it would please her to have, and the geni of the kitchen do the rest. The amount the steward spends in a month is enormous, the butler's bill often amounting to $200 per week, or the tidy sum of $1,000 per month. This, of course, includes game of every kind and choicest cuts of the most expensive meats in the market. The amount spent for fruit almost equals the meat bill, for the choicest grapes are sometimes $20 per pound, and other hot-house fruit costs in the same proportion. Counting the wines, $5,000 would about pay for the Havemeyer table for one month.

Mrs. William Astor keeps house in the most delightful manner, but on a less expensive scale than Mrs. Havemeyer. Her beautiful home on Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street is always perfectly appointed, but since she has been in mourning she has entertained very little, and has not needed the large staff of servants she kept when her children were with her. She has a steward who is matchless for worth in the whole country. He engages, pays and superintends the fourteen servants who make up the Astor menage. When this steward came to Mrs. Astor ten years ago she said to him: "I require my house to be kept in perfect order from top to bottom. I have no set day in which things are to be cleaned, but they must be spotless, if all the work has to be done twice every day. If you have not enough servants, get them." This simple, common sense rule has worked admirably, and it would be difficult to find a household in which every portion of the household machinery works so perfectly. There is a chef, and a very good one, but when Mrs. Astor gives a state dinner or ball, Pinard always serves it, as he has done for twenty years or more. The table expenses rarely exceed $500 per month and $75 per week is the limit of the butler's bill.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt is a very retiring, conservative woman, and while her home which covers half a block and is the largest in New York, requires the care of many servants, there is no undue extravagance, and the amount spent for housekeeping would not exceed that expended by her sisters-in-law for their much smaller houses. It is a strange thing, but many of the servants who have worked for Mrs. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Sloan and Mrs. Seward Webb for several years have never seen their mistresses closer than a peep at them through the upper windows as the ladies entered their carriage. The housekeeper is virtually the mistress. She hires them, pays them their wages and presents them with the Christmas gifts, which are carefully selected and always worth the having. Mrs. Bradley-Martin, Mrs. Townsend Burden, Mrs. George J. Gould, Mrs. Fred Vanderbilt, Mrs. William Rockefeller, Mrs. Ogden Mills, and Mrs. August Belmont are some of the of the lofty dames who have $100,000 a year to spend, and who never fail to spend it.

She—You're just like all the rest of the men. Here we've been married only a year and you never kiss me unless I ask you to. He—Tut! You're just like all the rest of the women. You never think to ask me to kiss you unless you want money.

Lettie—I think Bettie is perfectly horrid.

Nettie—Why?

Lettie—She took down all the Christmas greens, of course, after twelfth night, and pretended to forget the mistletoe.

"AND WILLIAM DID."
HENRY W. BRYAN.
The light burns low in the parlor,
Casting a red glow on the floor,
From her hair of sunny brown,
What a subject for the dream of a poet,
With those elfish deep blue eyes—
Eyes for a moment so innocent
And again so mischievously wise.

Her
.....Nine Lives

HE star reader had written in Rose's horoscope "You were born for hair breadth escapes. You seem to have nine lives, like a cat. You are likely to encounter serious peril before long, which will mark a turning point in your life."
Rose shrugged her shoulders as she read all this and much more. It's a rather blue outlook," she said to herself. "I hope nothing bad is going to happen on my Thanksgiving holiday, when I have planned for a good time."
She was not disposed to laugh at the prediction. She had, indeed, seemed to have nine lives in the past. She had been three times stunned by lightning, and had sprang from the window of a burning building in her night dress without serious injury. When a child, she had seen Paris green, fallen through a trap door tumbled head foremost into a deep well, and last, but not least, she had been tossed over a meadow fence on the horns of an angry bull because she had dared to flout her snarl red frock in his face.
Having shaken hands with danger many times, she was not so easily alarmed as those who only met him at long range, yet she felt a bit sober over the prospect.
"Do I look like a heroine of a tragedy?" Rose demanded of the pleasant salesgirl, who measured off ribbon at the same counter with her.
"No," Nora, responded, slowly, she looked Rose over and compared her with Olga Netherland, whose performance she had wept under at night before. "No there isn't a hint of tragedy about you just now, but who knows but you might become the heroine of one, for all that?"
Rose was not quite in her own element standing behind the counter of this great dry goods emporium on Sixth avenue, yet she was thankful to have secured it for the autumn season. Meantime she kept an eye to her main purpose. Rose had a literary and journalistic tendency. Her ambition was to become permanently associated with one of the New York literary papers. She wrote stories, but the cash for these did not pan out promptly. Hence while prospecting for the chance she coveted, she was glad to sell ribbons. The dazzling rainbow hues cheered her spirits. The customers and their idiosyncrasies were grist for her mill. Nothing escapes a welder of the pen. The literary person is understood by the initiated alone.
Rose had an eye the direction of the Sunday Mercury, thinking that with it lay her main chance. Her friend Gertrude, who was a typewriter in a downtown office, had told her to follow it up, as she had understood that from the beginning beginners had always been welcomed to its columns, if their work had the true ring. The acceptance of two stories by the editor had given Rose courage. "Stick to it," Gertrude urged. "Half the best writers in the country got a start in the Mercury."

she had curious feeling that she had known the young man all her life. He was not all the "masher" type. There was something rather of whole-souled, good-fellowship about him.
That night Rose had a funny dream, which showed she had the Sunday Mercury on the brain, if it showed nothing else. She thought she was going up a balcony which had ribbon streamers with the young man who had bought the ribbons for a companion. They had a carload of daily Mercu-ries, which they threw out as the balcony passed swiftly over the heads of a multitude of men, women and children, who reached up their hands and scrambled to catch copies. She had her pen and pencil, and was writing a special article for the paper, recording the trip, when all at once the balcony gave a great lurch, and—horror of horrors—she found herself falling. She tried to catch the ribbon streamers to save herself but could not. She went down, down, down straight into the arms of a big florid, good natured fellow, where she felt secure as in a cradle. She could hear the shout: "What's the matter with the balloon-girl?" and the response from the deep lungs of the man who held her. "She's all right!"
"Something always happens when I dream of falling," Rose thought when she woke.
Thanksgiving Day came, mild, clear and lovely as a November day can be when it sets out to do its best for pleasure seekers. Rose was to spend the day with Gertrude who lived with a cherry little mother in a cozy flat not far from Stuyvesant Square. They were to make a day of it. Each girl owned a bicycle. Rose's had been a present from her bachelor uncle in Iowa. As she wheeled along the streets that morning on her way to Gertrude's she forgot her dream of downfall in the joy of unconfined motion.
"Such a day for the out of town trip," she said to Gertrude as she ran up the stairs. "Made to order without a doubt."
"It's just glorious," Gertrude assented with enthusiasm. "But our poor folks must be first attended to. I want to make some others happy who are less fortunate than I, just to show my gratitude for my nice position in the office of Ingle, Dingle & Co."
So Gertrude's mother, who was a prime home cook, put up two big lunch baskets full of food—cold meats, pies, crullers, jelly roll, with fruit and candy thrown in, Rose's contribution was a package of papers and magazines, which included some Sunday Mercu-ries, because her favorite Teddy Timmins, the patient little hunch-back, liked so much the fairy stories in the children's corner.
The two girls rode around and made their distribution and thanks and smiles and tears of delight, and came home to the nice dinner awaiting them in the snug dining-room, where the home mother presided.
"You look healthy and happy, and I hope you are hungry," she said, as they all sat down.
"We are hungry now," Rose laughed. "But we shall be ravenous after our ride."
The two girls looked well in their bicycle suits as they flashed along the boulevard with its many gay turnouts. They had each conquered the seeming unconquerable problem of becoming dress. Many a masculine glance of admiration followed them as they dashed along in jaunty short skirts, shapely leggings and soft felt hats.
The sun was slanting when they got beyond the urban district. The sky was still cloudless. An Indian summer flush lay all around the horizon.
"Oh," said Rose, as she sniffed the air. "I feel as if I could go on forever in this glorious atmosphere."
"The planets must have some such buoyant feeling as they swing around through the ether. Think of the mad race this old earth is running every day over its encircled road. And it always gets there."

"And so shall we," Gertrude shouted back.
They rode on and on, up hill and down dale, in an abandonment of delight which made them oblivious of distance. They sped into cross roads with once questioning where the roads led. They ran a race with a flowing gurgling brook, and breathed deep of woody odors in the long stretches of woodland.
All at once the sun seemed to drop down behind a hill suddenly, they wheeled around for the home run. They came to the cross-roads they had passed lately. There was a quaint red house there, and a goblin with no solitary turkey roamed disconsolate for the loss of the barn. They bespoke a man with an armful of kindling wood, for they were in doubt which road to take. He gave them directions.
"Are we far out of the city?" Grace asked.
"Dark! I'll keep you long before you come to the bridge," the man said with a grin.
They stuck sputs to their steeds, and shot along in the twilight. At the foot of the hill, within sound again of the brook's gurgle, they became aware of two male riders bearing down upon them, and soon four bicycles instead of two, were racing side by side. Rose and Gertrude had an instinctive fear of the men, and tried to distance them, but could not. Presently the rider on Gertrude's side brought his wheel close to hers and caught her shoulder. His breath smote her nostrils. He had been drinking. At that moment she heard Rose say to the other, who was annoying her:
"There, sir I've punctured your tire for you! Here, Gertrude, use my good steel blade, and use it quickly."
She passed her pocket penknife across to Gertrude, who hacked with a will the rubber rim of the obnoxious wheel with its rider. The two men fell back with a muttered profanity, and the girls shot ahead like arrows.
The crescent moon shone in the faint glow of the west. The stars were peeping out here and there in the blue overhead. They heard carriage wheels and singing voices. Two prancing horses came around a sharp curve in the road, carrying a large load of big and little folk, and a tall flagstaff, with long streamers. The girls swerved around quickly, but Rose's wheel came in contact with a large stone in the road. She lost control of the machine. The horses reared at sight of the apparition among the shadows, and in a moment she was down under their hoofs, helplessly entangled in her wheel.

There were screams and shouts. A man sprang from the barge and dragged her away from the horses heels, while the driver coaxed them under control. Gertrude had dismounted and was bending over Rose, crying hysterically: "Rose! Rose! are you killed?"
The young man, on one knee, supported her head and shoulders. Her face looked white and still in the starlight. Presently she gave a little shiver, opened her eyes, looked up into the face bent over her and recognized it. The eyes were too grave to twinkle just then, but Rose felt ridiculously mirthful under the circumstances.
"Oh," said Gertrude, joyfully, "she isn't dead!"
"Of course I'm not dead," Rose said, distinctly. "I was born for hair-breadth escapes. This is my ninth life—my arm hurts terribly." Then she fainted away.
But she revived again in a few moments. A place was made in the barge for her, and a girl of the party held the reins while the driver took her up in his arms like a baby and placed her therein. Room was found for the bicycle too, but by dint of economy of space, Gertrude mounted and rode off, and the barge with its load moved on again.
Rose felt her bruise, but kept up bravely. And they told her all about the party. The pleasant girls were "King's daughters," who were aiming to be "All glorious within," as well as without. So that day they had taken a party of poor children on an outing, instead of merry making on their own circle of friends as usual. And Bert who by the way, was supporting Rose's head all this time, for she was too weak to support herself—Bert was a young "King's Son," who had lately come into more money—through no fault of his own—than he knew what to do with. So he had begged them to draw on him for cash and service whenever they liked, and up to date they had not been found backward. Then the children sang again, showing how well the "King's Daughters" had trained them, and in the midst of it all Rose was lifted above the pain and felt happy.
"Bert asked the hero's ten-year-old sister, in the midst of a profound pause, 'Bert, what did the star-man say about the pretty brown eyed girl with brains and ambition whom you were to marry? Did he say—?'"
"I'll tell you all about it later," Bert said hastily.
The question was a flashlight! Rose began a short sum in addition. When they came in town she saw that each child wore a bright knot of ribbon on breast or shoulder. And the bright streamers were flying.
To make a long story short, Rose was taken to Gertrude's home. And Bert found an excuse about every day to call there while she was regaining her normal condition, for though no bones were broken, her nervous system was under a terrible tension.
It looks now as if the journalistic bee in her bonnet would stop buzzing for a time at least. For Bert is in dead earnest and wants her all himself. He had recognized her at once that day, at the ribbon counter, as "the girl of destiny," and "why should they fight against the stars in their courses?" he asks.
Rose has no desire to fight against them.

To Enjoy Life
The physical machine must be in good running order. A little care—the use of Ripans Tablets—will give you every morning the feeling that you are "glad to be alive."
A Diagnosis.
If marriage is a failure, as the critics oft have said,
And the wedding-bell but tolls Love's elegy;
If marriage is a failure, and love so soon is dead,
A clear case of heart-failure it must be.

RELIGIOUS TOPICS.
A CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HOSPITAL.
A very practical and praiseworthy work is that just completed by the Christian Endeavor Societies, of Saginaw, Mich., whose members evidently believe in taking care of the body as well as the soul. They have established a Christian Endeavor Hospital, the need of which grew out of the lack of accommodations for patrons during a recent contagious epidemic in the city. Of course the hospital is not an enormous concern, yet relatively it represents great labor and sacrifice on the part of the promoters. It is a cozy little building 40x45 feet, with an addition 24 feet square. It has four wards, each with two cots, and other additional rooms. The entire cost was $1,350.
CHURCH VS. SALOON.
Bishop Vincent, in speaking recently upon "The Church as a Social Institution," said: "Our young people pass along our streets at night and behold the theatres, saloons and many shops ablaze with light. They do not pause at the doors our churches. And why? Because they are closed, cold and dreary-looking. I tell you it is a great mistake. Let our churches be open 365 days in the year. Let there be no vacations. Then our young people will go to the churches and not to other places."
DAVID SWING'S SUCCESSOR.
At last the Central Church of Chicago has called a pastor to the pulpit made vacant by the death of Prof. Swing. He is the Rev. N. D. Hillis, D. D., of Evanston, Ill. Dr. Hillis is still a young man, being but thirty-six years of age, and is well fitted for that peculiar work. He is broad-minded and liberal, and of a noble character always devoted to his duty. He belongs to the most liberal branch of the Presbyterian Church, and being a Western man, has the advantage of knowing the people among whom he will live and toil. His vivid and picturesque oratory will doubtless draw to him large congregations. Dr. Hillis has no idea of leading the Central Church back to the Presbyterian fold, but will continue in the independence inherited from David Swing.
MISSIONS A FAILURE.
A most spirited and bitter discussion appears in the December Forum, voicing the sentiments of two missionaries in India. The one is Purushotham Rao Telang, a Brahmin, who writes contemptuously on Christian missions. His antagonist is Bishop J. M. Thuburn, the leader of Methodist missions in India, who takes up his cudgel and gives as good as he sent. The point of controversy is the sham of the whole missionary cause. The first writer declares that the missionary with his $100 a month salary lives equal to a $1000 income in this country. He keeps his horses, five or six servants, and enjoys a life of luxury and indolence. The Bishop says that the six servants there cannot do the work of one American domestic. Mr. Telang insinuates that the missionary's work consists of loafing in the morning, idling in the afternoon and lounging in the evening, with an hour or so spent in street preaching at a neighboring town.
The Bishop replies by saying that this picture is a mere caricature, "not intended—we must suppose—to be taken seriously." As to work, a missionary must care for "a score, hundred, or perhaps five hundred families," beside his own.
AGENT BATTLE
Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore bodily health for many years.
Hood's Pills cure nausea, sickness, indigestion and biliousness. 25c.
He (pompously)—Yes, we are descended from one of the oldest families in England. One of my ancestors was beheaded for his devotion to the R. yalists.
She—Ah, now I see! It is by a sort family inheritance that you lose your head so often.

The Magic Touch
OF
Hood's Sarsaparilla
You smile at the idea. But if you are a sufferer from Dyspepsia
And Indigestion, try a bottle, and before you have taken half a dozen doses, you will involuntarily think, and no doubt exclaim,
"THAT JUST HITS IT!"
That soothing effect is a magic touch, and strengthens the stomach and digestive organs, invigorates the liver, creates a natural, healthy desire for food, gives refreshing sleep, and in short, raises the health tone of the entire system. Remember
Hood's Sarsaparilla
Hood's Pills cure liver ills, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, sick headache, indigestion

COULD HARDLY BREATHE
Catarrh of the Nose, Throat and Stomach—Life Made Miserable by Headaches, Pain and Cough.
Lida McCallister, No. 1229 South Thirtieth street, Philadelphia, in conversation with a reporter, said: "I had a very bad case of catarrh of the nose, throat and stomach, with frequent headaches, pain under the shoulder blades and a horrible cough. I was advised to try Munyon's Catarrh Cure. I am happy to say that from the beginning I felt relieved and continued to grow better until now I am entirely well. I am so thankful that this remarkable remedy was ever discovered, and hope others will take advantage of my experience."
Have you Catarrh? Are you willing to investigate a treatment that cures Catarrh by removing the cause? If so ask your druggist for a 25c. bottle of Munyon's Catarrh Cure and a 25c. bottle of Catarrh Tablets. The Catarrh Cure will eradicate the disease from the system, and the Tablets will cleanse and heal the afflicted parts, and restore them to a natural and healthful condition.
Munyon's Homeopathic Home Remedy Company, of Philadelphia, put up specific for nearly every disease, which are sold by all druggists, mostly for 25c. a bottle.

All operations positively guaranteed to prove satisfactory. Fillings of Gold Silver, Artificial Bone Gutta Percha, etc., and Superior Artificial Teeth inserted at reasonable prices.
NOTE—Many Dentists extract teeth that cannot be saved if properly treated and filled. How to preserve the natural teeth is our study. Special attention given to the treatment of Nervous, Timid Patients and Children.
NORRIS—I really don't know right here for the use of "ODONTOLIN," an entirely new process for the extraction of Teeth absolutely without pain. Endorsed by physicians and all others who have tried it.
